VOICE STRATEGIC PLAN 2024-2027

> VISION

Our vision is a world in which every crisis-affected community receives principled, timely, and comprehensive support tailored to their needs.

> MISSION

We use our collective voice towards the European Union and its Member States to promote effective and principled humanitarian responses. We advocate for the continued recognition of the key role of NGOs in humanitarian action, and for adequate resources to meet the needs of those living in the most vulnerable contexts and conditions.

VOICE STRATEGIC OBJECTIVES

> STRATEGIC GOAL 1
Principled humanitarian response

> STRATEGIC GOAL 2
EU and Member States humanitarian funding and humanitarian aid policies

> STRATEGIC GOAL 3
The role of humanitarian NGOs

Dear readers,

2025 has been a defining year for humanitarian action, a year of growing pressure on the humanitarian sector but also strengthening our collective voice. The sudden suspension of humanitarian funding from the United States at the start of the year sent shockwaves across the sector, threatening life-saving assistance for millions of people worldwide. For many organisations, this translated into immediate operational disruptions and difficult decisions for their humanitarian programmes.

VOICE responded rapidly, mobilising its membership and coordinating with the VOICE President and Board to assess the impact and engage with European institutions. We worked closely with members and peer networks in Brussels and beyond to understand and address the implications of the global funding crisis at EU level.

Within weeks, more than 100 NGOs joined our first ever VOICE-led open letter calling on the EU and its Member States to take urgent action to mitigate the consequences of the funding gap for crisis-affected communities. This was followed by targeted exchanges, including a letter to DG ECHO's Director-General Maciej Popowski outlining concrete measures such as increased pre-financing, accelerated contract modifications, and the need for stable and predictable EU funding. A joint letter with peer networks addressed to the President of the European Commission Ursula von der Leyen further reinforced the call for a coordinated EU response. This immediate mobilisation set the tone for a year in which VOICE combined rapid response with sustained strategic engagement, ensuring that humanitarian action remains principled, needs-based and adequately resourced.

VOICE enabled high-level political engagement throughout the year. In early 2025, VOICE President Pauline Chetcuti and I met with Commissioner Hadja Lahbib to discuss the implications of the funding crisis and the need to safeguard principled humanitarian action. Engagement with the European Parliament was reinforced through exchanges with the DEVE Standing Rapporteur for Humanitarian Action, MEP Leire Pajín, and the DEVE Chair MEP Barry Andrews, ensuring that humanitarian NGOs perspectives were reflected in parliamentary processes.

At the same time, the crisis highlighted broader challenges facing humanitarian action in Europe. Disinformation and politicised narratives gained traction, while civil society organisations faced increasing pressure on their role and legitimacy. Recognising this, VOICE strengthened its work, became more outspoken externally but also adapted internally by creating a new Communication working group to reinforce collective messaging and public trust in humanitarian action. We also welcomed four new member organisations and reached in 2025 – for the first time ever in 33 years - 93 member organisations.

I would like to warmly thank our members, Board of Directors and Secretariat for their dedication to maintaining a strong humanitarian voice in Brussels and across Europe, advocating for NGOs as key partners supporting crisis-affected communities worldwide.

Please enjoy reading the Annual Report 2025!

HUMANITARIAN REFORM: VOICE ENGAGEMENT AT A CRITICAL JUNCTURE

In 2025, the debate on the “Humanitarian Reform” and the need for broader reform marked a turning point for the humanitarian system. Faced with a dramatic funding shortfall and growing needs, the UN system is undergoing a process of prioritisation focusing on those with highest severity needs while broader questions of reform, legitimacy and effectiveness are coming to the forefront.

In this context, VOICE actively engaged at key moments throughout the year to ensure that the perspectives of humanitarian NGOs are reflected in shaping the future of the system at the EU level. In March, VOICE members met with Tom Fletcher, United Nations Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator, for an exchange on the state of the system and the direction of the Humanitarian Reset. Key priorities highlighted included:

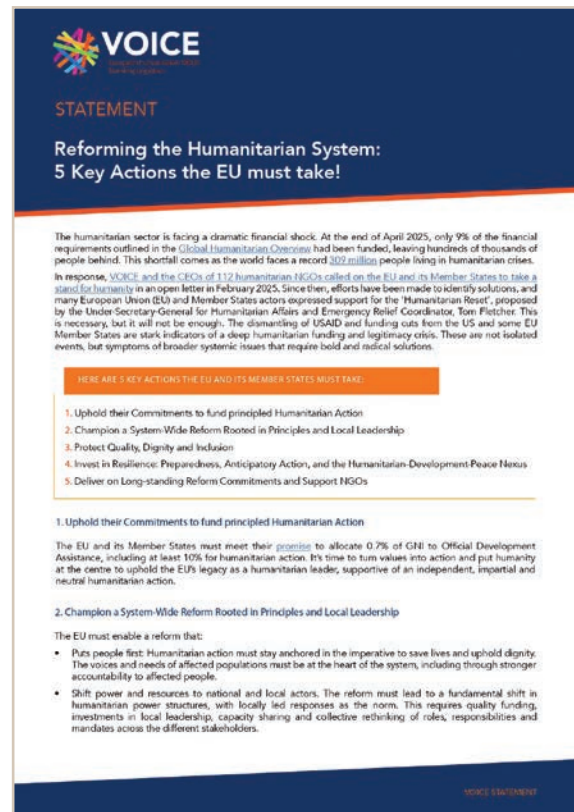

- responsible and strategic prioritisation in the face of funding constraints
- shifting power and resources towards local actors
- strengthening leadership at country level
- defending principled humanitarian action and rebuilding public trust

The exchange also highlighted the increasing importance of narrative and communication, as mis- and disinformation continue to undermine the credibility of humanitarian action.

VOICE engagement on the Reset was further elevated through the invitation of VOICE President Pauline Chetcuti by Commissioner Hadja Lahbib to participate in a high-level, closed-door meeting on the Humanitarian Reset, on the margins of the European Humanitarian Forum.

This meeting brought together key European donors, humanitarian actors and IASC Principals for an informal exchange on the future of the humanitarian system.

It provided a critical opportunity to bring NGO perspectives directly into high-level political discussions and highlight the operational implications of funding cuts and prioritisation.

VOICE statement: Reforming the Humanitarian System: 5 Key Actions the EU must take!

In the discussion VOICE called for a reform agenda grounded in humanitarian principles, rather than short-term political considerations.

Building on these exchanges, VOICE translated its engagement into concrete action through the publication of a statement: “Reforming the Humanitarian System: 5 Key Actions the EU must take!”.

The statement situates the Humanitarian Reset within a broader crisis of funding and legitimacy, calling for a principled and structural approach to reform.

It outlines five key priorities for the EU and its Member States including:

- uphold commitments to fund principled humanitarian action
- champion reform grounded in humanitarian principles and local leadership
- protect quality, dignity and inclusion
- invest in resilience, including preparedness and anticipatory action
- deliver on long-standing reform commitments and strengthen support to NGOs

Meeting between VOICE President Pauline Chetcuti, VOICE Director Maria Groenewald, and Tom Fletcher, United Nations Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator

Lastly, on 30 June, VOICE joined Coordination SUD and Groupe URD to bring together NGO leaders, networks and partners for a collaborative day of reflection on the theme: “Between safeguarding and transformation – the aid sector at a crossroads.” Together, a wide range of organisations reflected on shared challenges and began shaping collective priorities for the future of the sector, and the next steps in terms of collective action, creating synergies between national and the European level.

EU HUMANITARIAN POLICY: TOWARDS THE 2026 EC’S COMMUNICATION ON HUMANITARIAN AID

The announcement of the European Commission’s Communication on Humanitarian Action, expected in 2026, created a key policy opportunity in 2025.

The European Humanitarian Forum (May 2025) and the Partners’ Segment provided early key platforms for these discussions. VOICE actively contributed to shaping the agenda, including through participation in the Partners’ Task Force and engagement in high-level discussions on humanitarian diplomacy and fragility.

Across these processes, VOICE consistently emphasised the need for:

- principled, needs-based humanitarian action

- stronger integration of localisation and anticipatory approaches
- inclusive policymaking processes grounded in operational realities

These issues were highlighted at the COHAFA meeting, where the Polish Presidency invited VOICE to present its reflections on the EHF. In addition, at the 2025 Partners’ Segment, VOICE co-organised with the Red Cross EU office a session on Scaling up Disaster Preparedness in Complex Settings, to identify solutions to reinforce preparedness in contexts where it remains particularly difficult to scale. The exchange led to the publication of an outcome report providing key recommendations to do so.

In October 2025, the publication of the Commission Work Programme confirmed the Communication as a priority. VOICE began coordinating efforts with members to ensure that NGO perspectives were reflected.

Throughout the year, engagement was sustained across different levels of the EU institutions. At the European Parliament, VOICE intervened in the DEVE Committee’s annual exchange on humanitarian action, highlighting key concerns including funding shortfalls, protection risks and fragility, while putting forward recommendations linked to the next MFF, the European Humanitarian Forum and parliamentary engagement. In addition, VOICE contributed to the EP’s INI report on humanitarian assistance and participated in discussions with Renew MEPs on strengthening civil society inclusion.

More specifically on the Communication on humanitarian aid, in December, VOICE convened a workshop on “Shaping the Future of EU Humanitarian Action: Priorities for the Next Communication”, to bring together representatives from the VOICE membership, the Red Cross EU, the ICRC, MSF, and DG ECHO, creating space for open and strategic dialogue on the EU’s future humanitarian priorities.

Participants underlined the need for the EU to reaffirm humanitarian principles; to strengthen humanitarian diplomacy and global discussions on IHL; to deliver an ambitious EU Integrated Approach on Fragility; to adapt funding and partnership models in a constrained environment; and to advance localisation and equitable partnerships through concrete, practical measures. The workshop also reinforced the importance of translating ambition into action. Participants called for the next Communication to be accompanied by concrete commitments, notably on humanitarian diplomacy, fragility, and localisation, to ensure real impact beyond policy statements.

VOICE also continued its support to the High-Level Leadership Group on Supply Chain, which aims to drive coordinated action among key humanitarian actors, improving the humanitarian supply chain’s efficiency and effectiveness. After VOICE’s participation in the Launch Conference in December 2024, VOICE provided its members, throughout 2025, with various platforms to prepare and align ahead of key milestones of the initiative (workshops, final conference...). VOICE President Pauline Chetcuti participated in the high-level final conference organised in December 2025, endorsing the Conference Conclusions and committing to continue to give visibility to these issues across our network and the broader NGO community.

EU and Member States Humanitarian Funding and Humanitarian Aid Policies

SHAPING THE FUTURE OF EU HUMANITARIAN FUNDING

EU budget discussions were a central focus of VOICE's work throughout 2025. From early stakeholder meetings in January at the European Parliament to ongoing negotiations on the next Multiannual Financial Framework (MFF), VOICE consistently highlighted the importance of a predictable, principled, and adequately funded humanitarian response.

At the start of the year, VOICE published the statement, "Humanitarian Action at a Crossroad: Why the EU Must Boost Funding in the Next MFF" calling on the EU and its Member States to maintain dedicated humanitarian funding and to preserve the integrity of existing instruments and budget lines in the next Multiannual Financial Framework (MFF) for 2028-2034.

Key recommendations included:

- maintaining a dedicated budget line and instrument for humanitarian assistance within the new MFF structure
- allocating a minimum of €18.2 billion over seven years, with an annual baseline of at least €2.6 billion
- preserving the Emergency Aid Reserve (EAR) with a minimum annual allocation of €600 million for external action
- increasing national contributions from EU Member States to strengthen the EU's ability to respond to crises

As discussions progressed, policy engagement focused on ensuring that humanitarian funding is protected from politicisation and remains aligned with humanitarian principles.

In July 2025, the European Commission presented its proposal for the next MFF, including a €25 billion allocation for humanitarian assistance over seven years. While this increase was welcomed as an important political signal, VOICE highlighted critical shortcomings, notably the absence of a guaranteed baseline within the Global Europe Regulation for humanitarian action, the risks of dilution of humanitarian assistance amidst other priorities and the overreliance of the instrument on flexibility.

Throughout the year, VOICE developed and refined its positions. Key documents included:

- the VOICE statement "Global Europe: A dangerous gamble for Humanitarian Action, flexible but unpredictable" outlining concerns and recommendations for the Global Europe Instrument (GEI)
- updated internal briefings supporting coordinated dialogue with EU institutions and Member States

A central priority ask was to reconcile flexibility with predictability. VOICE called for a clear balance between programmable and non-programmable funding and warned against excessive reliance on annual budget negotiations. The network also consistently pushed for stronger integration of fragility considerations within the GEI.

FRAGILITY/NEXUS/CLIMATE: FROM POLICY PRIORITY TO COLLECTIVE POSITION

Fragility emerged as a central theme in 2025, closely linked to both budget discussions and broader EU policy processes.

The VOICE Policy Resolution 2025 on Fragility, adopted at the General Assembly in June 2025, marked a key milestone. It called for sustained, long-term engagement in fragile contexts, greater coherence across the Humanitarian–Development–Peace nexus, and stronger support for local actors.

This work was reinforced through continuous engagement across the year through the Resilience-Nexus working group. In February 2025, VOICE co-organised a joint webinar with CONCORD and EPLO on integrating fragility and the nexus into the next MFF development cooperation instrument. As outcome of the webinar, the three networks published a joint call for the EU to ensure no one is left behind in the next MFF. In the document, the networks call on the EU to establish a financial framework for external action that upholds the EU's core values and prioritises a people-centred approach, is grounded in long-term financing, the Humanitarian–Development–Peace nexus and supports locally led action.

VOICE also contributed to EU-level processes on fragility, including Member States' discussions on an Integrated Approach to Fragility. Over the summer, VOICE coordinated member inputs to ensure a strong collective NGO voice to an EU stakeholders' consultation on fragility.

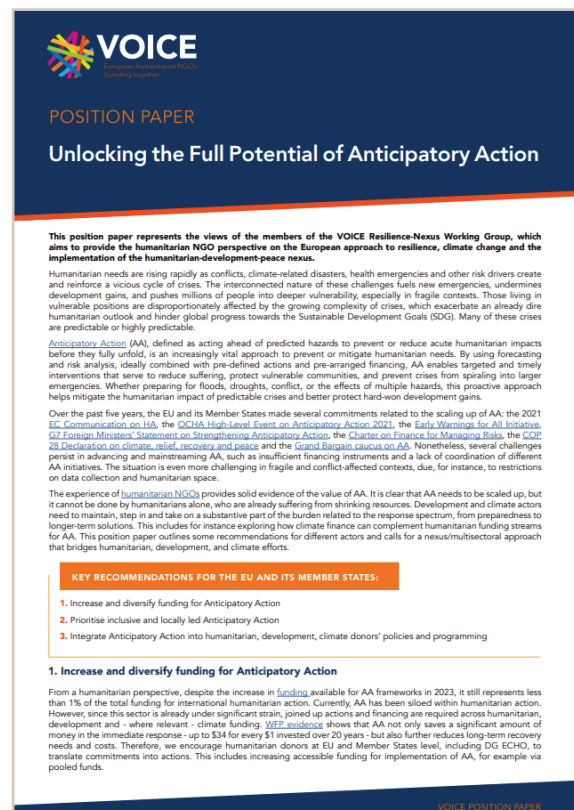

High-level engagement further reinforced this agenda. The VOICE-Global Focus high-level roundtable, recognised in the Danish Presidency programme, brought together EU policy-makers, think tank and NGOs to discuss fragility, anticipatory action and humanitarian financing. These discussions fed directly into ongoing EU policy processes, including the forthcoming European Commission Communication on Humanitarian Action and its staff working document on the EU integrated approach to fragility. The VOICE Out Loud on "The Cost of Inaction" complements these policy discussions by highlighting the evidence-based, programmatic perspectives of VOICE members on the issue.

In parallel, the Resilience-Nexus working group continued its work on Anticipatory Action (AA) and in February VOICE launched the position paper, Unlocking the Full Potential of Anticipatory Action. The paper highlighted the urgent need to scale up Anticipatory Action to address rising humanitarian needs caused by conflicts, climate-related disasters, and other crises. It emphasised the importance of breaking silos between humanitarian, development, and climate sectors to ensure timely, effective, and well-funded AA interventions.

Key recommendations of the position paper include:

1. increase and diversify funding
2. prioritise inclusive and locally led Anticipatory Action
3. integrate Anticipatory Action into humanitarian, development, climate donors' policies and programming

In March VOICE Director Maria Groenewald was invited by the Polish Presidency of the Council of the EU to present the position paper during the informal CODEV-PI/COHAFA meeting in Warsaw.

The Role of Humanitarian NGOs

REINFORCING PARTNERSHIPS

The partnership with DG ECHO remained a cornerstone of VOICE's work in 2025. In a year marked by pressure on budgets and operational space, this partnership has remained essential.

High-level dialogue was maintained throughout the year. In particular, VOICE leadership held a dedicated exchange with Director-General Maciej Popowski, alongside meetings with Director Hanna Jahns, to discuss key strategic priorities including the future of EU humanitarian funding, fragility, localisation and the broader humanitarian reform agenda. These discussions provided an important opportunity to underline the operational realities faced by NGOs, the implications of shrinking humanitarian space, and the need to preserve a strong, predictable and principled partnership model.

Through regular exchanges within the Humanitarian Partnership Watch Group, VOICE members have engaged constructively with DG ECHO on partnership modalities, localisation, risk-sharing and the impacts of the global funding crisis on DG ECHO's partnership, while also speaking clearly when concerns arose.

VOICE engaged extensively in discussions on the future Humanitarian Partnership (2028–2034), including the revision of the ex-ante assessment framework. Through the Watch Group and dedicated task force, members provided consolidated feedback on draft Terms of Reference and key elements of the revision process.

VOICE also addressed operational and administrative challenges, including engagement on the Certificate on Financial Statements (CFS) and audit requirements, ensuring that compliance processes do not hinder assistance delivery.

While the Humanitarian Partnership with DG ECHO remains central, VOICE also ensured that the perspectives of humanitarian NGOs were consistently reflected across the broader EU institutional landscape. Engagement with Member States was sustained through regular participation in COHAFA, including high-level discussions under both the Polish and Danish Presidencies. In May 2025, VOICE Director Maria Groenewald was invited by the Polish EU Presidency to address the informal COHAFA meeting, presenting consolidated NGO recommendations on the next Multiannual Financial Framework and the need to safeguard predictable and principled humanitarian funding. These exchanges provided important opportunities to highlight operational realities, advocate for stronger integration of fragility considerations, and reinforce the importance of anticipatory action and respect for International Humanitarian Law.

In parallel, VOICE strengthened its engagement with the European Parliament, working closely with the Standing Rapporteur on Humanitarian Aid, MEP Leire Pajín, in the lead-up to the adoption of the own-initiative (INI) report on humanitarian action. Through targeted outreach and technical input, VOICE contributed to ensuring that the report reflects key NGO priorities, including principled, needs-based assistance and the protection of humanitarian space. Engagement also extended to broader stakeholder dialogues, including exchanges with Members of the European Parliament and participation in policy discussions on civil society space and humanitarian reform. Together, these efforts reinforced the role of humanitarian NGOs as essential partners in shaping EU policy, ensuring that decision-making remains grounded in field realities and humanitarian principles.

Beyond the EU, VOICE strengthened engagement with global actors. In November 2025, VOICE leadership met with the UK's Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office (FCDO) to discuss humanitarian priorities, localisation and reform processes. Coordination with global NGO networks, including ICVA and BOND, further reinforced VOICE's positioning.

STRENGTHENING HUMANITARIAN NARRATIVES AND PUBLIC ENGAGEMENT

In 2025, VOICE continued to strengthen its communication efforts to support collective messaging, increase the visibility of humanitarian action, and respond to a rapidly evolving information environment marked by growing politicisation and disinformation.

A key moment of collective engagement was VOICE's participation in the World Humanitarian Day campaign (#ActForHumanity).

Together with members, VOICE amplified calls for the protection of civilians and humanitarian workers, and for respect of International Humanitarian Law. The campaign provided an important opportunity to align messaging across the network and reach wider audiences beyond Brussels-based stakeholders.

To further expand its outreach, during the campaign VOICE also launched its Instagram channel, complementing existing platforms and enabling more accessible, visual and people-centred storytelling. This step reflects a broader effort to diversify communication tools and engage more effectively with wider audiences, including younger and non-specialist publics.

At the same time, communication work in 2025 increasingly focused on addressing the challenges posed by disinformation and harmful narratives affecting humanitarian action. VOICE contributed to these discussions through both internal and external engagement. This included the co-organisation of a workshop with Fondation Hirondelle on disinformation in humanitarian contexts, as well as participation in a dedicated session at AidEx in Geneva. These exchanges highlighted how misinformation and information manipulation can undermine trust, restrict access, and increase risks for humanitarian actors and affected communities.

Building on these discussions, VOICE also convened its Communications Working Group, bringing together members to reflect on shared challenges and explore more coordinated approaches to messaging, narrative framing, and public engagement across EU Member States. Across these efforts, a common priority emerged: strengthening credible, principled and human-centred communication as a core component of humanitarian action. In an increasingly contested information space, communication is not only about visibility, but also about safeguarding trust, reinforcing humanitarian principles, and ensuring that the realities of crisis-affected populations remain visible in public and policy debates. This work was complemented by sustained efforts to showcase the work of members in emergencies and to provide food for thought to EU public debates. Through the VOICE Out Loud series, VOICE continued to connect policy discussions with broader narratives. VOICE out loud 39, focused on communication challenges in the humanitarian sector, including an interview with Commissioner Hadja Lahbib, exploring how to bridge the gap between humanitarian principles and public perceptions in an increasingly complex political environment. The 40th magazine, dedicated to fragility, featured an in-depth discussion with MEP Barry Andrews on the implications of fragility for EU humanitarian policy.

VOICE EVENT IN JUNE ON GEOPOLITICS AND HUMANITARIAN ACTION

In June, VOICE brought together members, partners, and experts for the event “Navigating Geopolitical Change: Challenges and Opportunities for Humanitarian Action” in Brussels. The event provided an important space to reflect on how shifting geopolitics are reshaping humanitarian action. The discussion, opened with the Brussels launch of the 2025 Global Humanitarian Assistance Report, presented by Mike Pearson, Research Fellow, ODI Global & Global Humanitarian Assistance Lead, ALNAP. His overview of the latest humanitarian funding trends confirmed what many in the sector are experiencing: growing needs, shrinking budgets, and increasing competition for resources.

The panel that followed offered a wide-ranging and honest conversation about the challenges ahead. Geopolitical analyst, Shada Islam, highlighted how the changing balance of global power is affecting humanitarian responses and stressed the importance of leadership and diplomacy in this evolving landscape.

Themrise Khan, Independent Researcher, Writer & Development Professional, challenged the sector to rethink localisation beyond current models, urging a more profound shift that gives real space to Global South leadership and perspectives. Olivier Routeau, Senior Humanitarian Leader, Première Urgence Internationale France, drew on operational experiences to underline the growing difficulties in accessing crisis areas and the need to build partnerships that share risks more fairly across the system.

A Strong and Growing Network

The strength of VOICE lies in its network. In 2025, membership reached a new record level of 93 organisations from 18 European countries, reflecting continued trust in the network's role and impact.

The General Assembly on 26 June 2025 provided a key moment for collective reflection, governance and strategic direction. It also marked the welcome of four new members: Geneva Call, People in Peril, Polish Centre for International Aid (PCPM), and the Netherlands Refugee Foundation.

With the active support of the Board of Directors, VOICE is in contact with other organisations throughout Europe to further extend the network. All VOICE members are welcome to support the enlarging of our network. Please find more information on our Join VOICE – VOICE webpage.

VOICE Finances

VOICE finances remain robust in 2025. Membership fees remain the primary source of VOICE income (71.74%). The 2025 DG ECHO operating grant was 230 000 euros. In total, VOICE income reached 817 668 euros.

Expenses reached 772 934 euros. In addition to the numerous usual activities, engagements and meetings, organised and attended by the Secretariat's team, for the first time ever, two colleagues visited members, partners and humanitarian programmes in Lebanon, Thailand and the Philippines, which enriched VOICE's collective work towards EU institutions. These missions helped bring Brussels and operations closer together by ensuring a better alignment between VOICE's work in Brussels towards DG ECHO, the Commission, the European Parliament and the Council and the challenges and opportunities of humanitarian programmes. It also provided an occasion to raise awareness about the humanitarian situation and humanitarian programmes in these countries towards VOICE external stakeholders, through the production of various communication materials, including videos for VOICE social media presence.

As every year, at the beginning of 2025, VOICE remained very prudent in implementing the annual budget until the 2025 income was secured by delaying the recruitment of the vacant Junior Communication Assistant position until April. This led to a positive year-end result amounting to 34 047.22€. Together with the previous years' results carried forward (68 457.45€), it provided some financial stability for the years to come. After the allocation of the bank interest earned on the dedicated savings account where it stands, the VOICE Reserve amounts to 232 846.29€.
